

724172

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An object of the present invention is to provide a facsimile apparatus which increases communication efficiency by classifying destinations into groups. Destinations inputted through an operation panel are classified into groups based on registration data stored in a registration memory of a destination judging section, and stored in a memory. A control section controls transmission of image data by group in the memory.

[illegible]